Penn State College of Medicine specialists are training health care providers and school nurses on how to screen for alcohol and substance use in youth. Our goal is to get teens the help that they need to address substance and alcohol misuse. We will seek broad answers that refer to teens in general, not specific people.

Who Can Volunteer?

Youth, grades 9-12, are invited to participate.

What will Participants Do?

Participants will be asked to join a one-hour virtual focus group. Participants will be asked to provide feedback on various methods for screening and educating youth about substance and alcohol use.
